ARTIST

Inspired by Georgia
O'Keeffe

The sixth graders have been doing a lot in art! For three weeks, they worked on a project inspired by Georgia O'Keeffe. They began learning about the artist and her style. Next, they started sketching. Using pastels, the students drew and colored flowers and a deer skull in a landscape setting. To finish their work, they blended the colors of the background and flowers. They included shading and details into their final piece. The students learned a lot about O'Keeffe from this activity and were able to share some interesting facts: Georgia O'Keeffe was a famous artist. She painted skulls and landscapes, usually with a desert as the background. Because she had arthritis, Georgia O'Keeffe quit three times.

ART

They say a picture is worth 1000 words. Look at those faces. I am blessed to see them five days a week. And boy the faces we make at each other through out the day. Sometimes theirs is a tired look especially when there is hard work to do, like writing their name staying on the line when making C, O or G. Sometimes it's an excited look especially when it is our day to go on the playground, or when it is snack time, or play time, or going to gym. Sometimes it's a prayerful look like when we are talking to God.

I can make faces too. Like the one that tells them I am proud of their hard work. Or the stern one that says you are too loud, quiet your voices. The best one is the one they see when they arrive in the morning. A BIG smile saying happy to see you! Ready for another day?

Wow we are back to school again and it is already the end of September. The students and I are enjoying a regular school year. The class has had a great start, working and playing hard!

In third grade we have a new kind of schedule. The children are changing classes for more subjects than in past years and they really enjoy it. The students are learning a lot about being organized and prepared for class.

The class is working hard to fill the marble jar and earn free recess. The jar has already been filled several times. Lots of chance cards have been earned also for good behavior, participation, and hard work. The children have been caught doing many good deeds for others and have earned peace people for their efforts.

Soon the students will be interviewed by Mrs. Solan for the leadership jobs they applied for.

It has been an action packed, exciting first month of school.

We are looking forward to what lays ahead in the months to come.
